1. Background and status quo

Why is your project, and the "application" you want to create, relevant?

What is the current status quo of dealing with research data in the area you want to address (or in your institution, respectively)?

What are current issues and challenges, and what is the specific gap you intend to address with your project?

What are international developments and trends in this specific area?

2. Objectives and envisioned results

- Please explain what you intend to achieve with the project.
- What are the planned, specific results and outputs of the project?
- In what regard is your project novel and what is the added value of the "application" you intend to develop?
- In what ways will your "application" be useful for working with research data, i.e., what will work better once your "application" is used?

3. Potential user groups

- For whom will your "application" be useful?
- Think both of direct users but also of potential users outside the immediate context of your "application" and indicate the size of the user group. How will those users benefit from your "application" in their work?
- How do you plan to ensure the involvement of user groups and uptake of the project's results by the user groups?

4. Work plan and project team

Please provide a concise project plan with work packages.

Explain, with what means / resources you aim to achieve the envisioned results. You may include a visualisation of your work plan.

Include the competences of the involved personnel in the description of the work packages (who is responsible for what?).

Please ensure that this section is consistent with the information you have provided in the "Roles" section ("Specific scientific competences for the project" and "Roles and responsibilities within the project").

5. Strategic fit and sustainability

- How is your project aligned with strategies of your institution on research data / digitalisation?
- What are the plans and resources required for the continuation of the envisioned service/"application" after the end of the project?

6. Dissemination and exploitation strategy / impact

- Provide a dissemination plan for the outcomes of your project. How do you plan to ensure the uptake of the "application"?
- What is the intended impact of the planned "application" for the user group?
- How do you deal with intellectual property rights?

7. References

• You may provide references to support your proposal. Please note that this is not a scientific research project, therefore an extensive reference list is not required.

Affirmations

In signing the application form, I confirm that the information provided in the proposal is, to the best of my knowledge, accurate and complete.

- I confirm my compliance with the WWTF Funding Guideline, WWTF Gender Equality Plan and Open Science Policy (available here) as well as the Call Specifications.
- I acknowledge the WWTF Privacy Policy and Terms and Conditions for Funding Applications.
- I will ensure compliance with all procedural requirements regarding safety, legal and ethical issues, animal experimentation, notification requirements, public tender procedures, labour legislations, immigration laws, data protection and privacy, and further relevant regulations.
- I confirm my compliance with the standards of good scientific practice as defined by either my home institution and/or the Austrian Agency for Research integrity (OeAWI). I confirm that I will fully cooperate with OeAWI should any inquiries into project-related scientific misconduct take place.
- Lonfirm that all persons whose position is funded by WMTF will receive a fair contract with at least a minimum payment according to the standards of a collective agreement ("Kollekthwertrag") or, if not applicable, according to the payment scheme of the Austrian Science Fund (FWF). I confirm that the maximum total employment of 100% for individual persons is not exceeded. I confirm my compliance with further salary regulations outlined in the call documents.
- · I agree to exploit intellectual property according to the rules set out by the involved host institutions.
- I confirm that the application submitted for WWTF funding is currently not subject to any other third-party funding on a regional, national or international level. I will disclose to WWTF if I apply for funding for the same project at other funding sources.
- All relevant changes that might impact the proposed project and its conduct will be communicated to WWTF immediately.
- Funded projects will be showcased via WWTF public relations activities. This includes displaying the projects via respective websites and contributing to other multimedia activities relevant for making the outcomes of this call visible.
- In case of funding: I hereby consent for information about the project (persons involved, project content) to be used by the WWTF to seek additional funding/sponsoring. Should potential external funding be identified, my agreement will be requested and finalized either during contracting or during the duration of the project.
